

For Immediate Release

INCOMPAS to FCC: T-Mobile’s “Binge On” is Innovative Competition within Open Internet Framework

WASHINGTON DC (June 3, 2016) – INCOMPAS, the internet and competitive networks association, sent a letter to the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) today in support of T-Mobile’s “Binge On” service, which it finds to be innovative, competitive and in line with Open Internet policies the association has championed.

INCOMPAS CEO Chip Pickering, a former Republican Member of Congress from Mississippi who co-authored the very first net neutrality legislation in Congress, found that after careful review, “Binge On” encourages users to try out new wireless and video services. The letter details the association's review and position.

“T-Mobile is the mad scientist of competition, willing to experiment, take risks and smash a few beakers. Mobile customers benefit from such competition, as it brings fresh ideas, investment and innovation like “Binge On” to the mobile broadband and video markets,” added Pickering.

A copy of the letter can be found here:

<http://www.incompas.org/Files/filings/2016/06-03-16%20INCOMPAS%20Letter%20to%20Chairman%20Wheeler.pdf>

About INCOMPAS:

INCOMPAS, the Internet and competitive networks association, is the leading trade group advocating for competition policy across all networks. INCOMPAS represents Internet, communications and technology companies large and small, advocating for laws and policies that promote competition, innovation and economic development. Learn more at www.incompas.org or follow us on Twitter: @INCOMPAS.