

INCOMPAS Statement: Expanded Verizon/INCOMPAS Business Data Service Compromise Brings More Competition

For Immediate Release

WASHINGTON DC (June 27, 2016) – Building upon their agreement in April, INCOMPAS, the Internet and competitive network association, and Verizon have sent a letter to the FCC expanding on their groundbreaking compromise that has the potential to end over a decade of disagreement in the BDS proceeding, and bring more choice to business customers.

In addition to the letter, Chip Pickering, CEO of INCOMPAS, released the following statement:

“The INCOMPAS-Verizon agreement sets a new path forward for competition, customers and the networks of the future.

“To help bring more choices, innovative service, and lower prices to market faster, the INCOMPAS-Verizon agreement sets a policy framework that immediately helps all businesses customers, using a variety of speeds, obtain affordable service, and incentivizes all network builders to deploy new, advanced networks.

“The Business Data Services proceeding is critical to both America’s wired and wireless infrastructure. Competition and connection are the key ingredients to deploying a 5G future, and helping all our businesses, schools, government buildings, hospitals and libraries grow.”
