Facebook Joins INCOMPAS

WASHINGTON, D.C. – INCOMPAS, the Internet and competition association, today announced that Facebook has become its newest member. The addition of Facebook, adds to the growing INCOMPAS membership, and brings a strong new voice to the association as they continue to promote competition, innovation and new network deployment for both wired and mobile networks.

“INCOMPAS is thrilled to welcome Facebook to the Internet and competition association. We are the home of new networks, competition and streaming services and excited to have Facebook on our team. Facebook is a pioneer that continues to introduce new products and new ideas that connect our families, business and friends. We look forward to working with Facebook as we advocate for open networks, broadband deployment and a more connected mobile future,” said Chip Pickering, CEO of INCOMPAS.

Facebook joins other recent INCOMPAS additions, including Twitter, Google Fiber, Netflix, Amazon, Rocket Fiber, Tivo and T-Mobile. INCOMPAS also includes Level 3, Windstream, EarthLink and Granite Telecommunications and many others.
