WASHINGTON DC (May 17, 2017) – President Trump has announced the nomination of longtime House Energy and Commerce staffer, David Redl, to be the Administrator at the National Telecommunications and Information Administration (NTIA).

In response, INCOMPAS released the following statement of congratulations:

“President Trump has made a great choice in tapping longtime Capitol Hill staffer David Redl to serve as the head of the NTIA. Experienced and substantive, Redl is well suited to the task of helping deploy America’s broadband networks, wired and wireless, to more American consumers and businesses. Redl’s grasp of spectrum policy will be an asset for the administration as they seek to build infrastructure and create jobs.”
